

The 9 Most Anticipated Spring Restaurant Openings

Enrique Olvera's Atla, Mark Ladner's Pasta Flyer, and more by Melissa McCart | Mar 13, 2017, 4:14pm EDT

This month ushers in a flurry of restaurant openings, from big-name groups to a handful of indie operators that are shaping how New York dines. Expect a handful of firsts: the first Midtown restaurant from Alex Stupak of Empellon, the first expansion from Katz's Delicatessen, and the first opening at the Landmark Rooms in what had been Four Seasons for over 50 years. Read on for details.

Ortzi (120 W. 41 St.) The Operator: Jose Garces

The Details: In Spring 2017, James Beard Award-winning chef Jose Garces (Best Chef: Mid-Atlantic 2009, Amada) will introduce Ortzi, a Basque-inspired restaurant at the new LUMA Hotel Times Square, a street-level restaurant and bar focused on cazuela cooking (clay pots), with an adjacent cocktail bar and a prolific wine list.

Daniel Krieger

Opening: April